ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

The FTSE Bursa Malaysia KLCI Index bucked the trend of strong global markets in Q2 2023 and fell 2.8% in local currency terms. This was driven by an underwhelming corporate earnings season and a disappointing 2023 government budget, which was perceived to be lacking in pro-growth initiatives. Sentiment has been tempered by the slower-than-expected rebound in China's economy post-pandemic. Additionally, Ringgit weakness (down 5.6% year-to-date) likely contributed to a vicious cycle of fund outflows, market weakness, and an even weaker currency.

Singapore's Straits Times Index (STI) eked out a gain of 0.4% in local currency terms in Q2 2023. As with most regional markets, the STI has been buffeted by uncertainty around global economic prospects. Additionally, market sentiment during the quarter was tempered by the release of domestic economic data which indicated slowing GDP growth and trade.

The Jakarta Composite Index (JCI) fell marginally, down 0.07% in local currency. Indonesia's economy is expected to experience only a mild slowdown in 2023 with growth projections to be approximately 4.8% due to global headwinds impacting exports. Indonesia's GDP growth will most likely shift towards the domestic sector as a result. Indonesian inflation dropped to below 5% for the first time since the government's decision to hike subsidised fuel prices back in September 2022. Bank Indonesia has projected inflation will drop further to below 4% by September 2023.

The Philippines Index was up 0.82% in local currency terms in Q2 2023. The Philippines' economy is expected to grow around 6% in 2023 according to the International Monetary Fund. In Q1 2023, Philippines reported GDP growth of 6.4%, however it is forecasted to fall below 6% in Q2 2023. The growth was supported by strong domestic demand due to improvement in labour markets, tourism, and construction benefitting from the full opening of major economic sectors.

The Stock Exchange of Thailand Index was down -7.27% in Q2 2023 in local currency terms. According to the World Bank, Thailand's economic growth is expected to accelerate to 3.9% in 2023 from 2.6% a year ago due to relatively better demand from China, Europe, and the United States, private consumption growth, election-related spending, and a recovery in tourism. Growth is expected to moderate slightly to 3.6% in 2024 and inflation to slow down to 2% driven by easing energy and commodity prices.

It is also worth noting that ASEAN valuations seem to be particularly cheap, with the MSCI All Country ASEAN trading at only 13.9x P/E compared with the five-year median of 16.0x. Regional markets are likely to re-rate as China's economic rebound picks up steam, especially if the dollar starts to weaken, which would boost commodity prices and provide a more conducive environment for easier monetary policy within the region.
